Leader-Post Regina (1883-2010)

The Leader-Post is the newspaper of Regina, capital of Saskatchewan. The paper was started upon the urging of a group of prominent citizens in 1883. Coverage of the 1885 trial of Louis Riel, the leader of the North-West Rebellion, a resistance movement of First Nations people against the Canadian government, is arguably the most famous in the nation's history. Also covered are Regina's early settlement, Saskatchewan's formation, the Roaring Twenties, the Great Depression, World War II, and many other events that lead into the 21st century. This daily newspaper has won the Canadian Journalism Foundation (CJF) Jackman Award for Excellence in Journalism. According to the CJF, the awards "honors an organization that embodies exemplary journalism with a resulting impact on the community it serves, in the small media and large media categories."

Saskatoon Star Phoenix (1902-2009)

Beginning with the name The Saskatoon Phoenix in 1902, this newspaper underwent many owners and names before officially becoming The Star Phoenix in 1928. The Star Phoenix is the only daily newspaper that serves Saskatoon, the largest city in Saskatchewan. Coverage of The Star Phoenix includes local news about how the city of Saskatoon developed to become the hub of Saskatchewan and received its nickname, The Hub City. The Star Phoenix coverage includes how the city was affected by the Great Depression and the Great War and was able to grow even after these downfalls. This daily newspaper has won the Canadian Journalism Foundation (CJF) Jackman Award for Excellence in Journalism.

Canadians ousted for 'oversight'

By JOANNE DELAND
Mount Allison — It once was the home of a Canadian bobsledding team, but now it's just a memory. The team was ousted from the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, Utah, after a "serious oversight" was discovered. The team had been competing in the bobsled event, but their sled was found to be illegal because it was too heavy. The team was disqualified, and the Canadian bobsledding team was left with no medal.

THE NEED FOR NEWS

In an era where local news coverage has been on the decline, historical regional papers can transport students and researchers to another time where smaller newspapers served as the informational hub of the community. Stories about neighborhood personalities, town events, city politics, schools, agriculture, commerce and other local business aren't available anywhere else.

Additionally, regional newspapers reveal local perspectives on national and international affairs for insight on how everyday lives are impacted and influenced by the issues and events that dominate the headlines of major metropolitan papers.

EXTREMELY IMPORTANT

Faculty state that developing critical thinking skills in students is extremely important.

From a 2018 survey of more than 1,300 faculty and students on the use of varied content in research, teaching, and learning, faculty indicate why they assign primary sources in teaching.

72% of researchers use news today

A 2017 ProQuest study shows that newspapers are a vital tool in research – they're used by 72% of researchers and recommended by 80% of researchers who teach.

Which of the following types of information do you use in your research? Which do you recommend to your students?

Faculty use a rich mix of content in their work and they encourage their students to stretch beyond journals.
