ProQuest’s Primary Source Collections
Second to None!

- 253M+ pages of world-class collections
- 170+ newspapers covering over 350 years
- 325+ years of historical periodicals coverage
- 6 Centuries of history covered in our collections

98% of faculty believe it is extremely important to assign primary sources to students to develop critical thinking skills

200k average pageviews per month of Early English Books Online

95% of librarians believe that they help students develop research, critical analysis and information literacy skills

93% of employers say critical thinking, clear communication and the ability to solve complex problems is more important than a student’s undergraduate major

60% of undergraduates have poor skills related to locating and evaluating scholarly information

95% of Humanities Upper Division faculty assign primary source materials in their teaching

357 Number of subject areas covered by publications that cite historical periodicals

40% of Humanities dissertations and theses reference newspapers

14% of all dissertations in PQDT Global cite content from historical periodicals

10 average number of different primary sources used by Humanities faculty in research
ProQuest’s Primary Source Collections
Second to None!

- 253M+ pages of world-class collections
- 325+ years of historical periodicals coverage
- 170+ newspapers covering over 350 years
- 6 Centuries of history covered in our collections

98% of faculty believe it is extremely important to assign primary sources to students to develop critical thinking skills.

93% of employers say critical thinking, clear communication and the ability to solve complex problems is more important than a student’s undergraduate major.

95% of Humanities Upper Division faculty assign primary source materials in their teaching.

357 Number of subject areas covered by publications that cite historical periodicals*

*Selected ProQuest Historical Periodicals analyzed